Drama

"Drama is about finding yourself.
Theatre is about losing yourself." Peter Brook

This course is good for students who:

- Enjoy learning through practical situations.
- Would like to learn more about theatre and performance.
- Develop transferrable skills; team work, communication skills, empathy, collaboration skills and confidence building.

What topics will you be studying?

- Devising from a stimulus, set by the exam board including written coursework.
- Presenting and performing text, performing to live audience and visiting examiner.
- Exploring set text, Blood Brothers, in preparation for the written exam.
- See a live piece of theatre to write a review in the written exam.

What do students studying this qualification go on to do?

- Develop strong communication skills: The experience of performing and collaborating with others enhances confidence in public speaking and effective communication in various contexts.
- Build teamwork and collaboration: Drama requires students to work together creatively, fostering a sense of community, problem-solving, and adaptability in group settings.
- Develop transferable skills for various careers: The skills gained in Drama, such as creativity, public speaking, and problem-solving, are valuable in fields like marketing, law, education, and media.